

SRI Performance Experts

apply their training in sport and performance psychology to offer:

- Mental skills training that optimizes performance in high-demand environments
- Adaptive coping strategies to enhance individual and organizational readiness
- Team-building sessions targeting unit cohesion

Mental readiness is the ability to think clearly, regulate stress, adapt quickly, and act decisively—especially when conditions are uncertain or demanding. Unlike physical conditioning alone, mental readiness governs how well training, strength, and experience translate into performance. Our training strengthens:

- Decision-making and focus under pressure
- Stress tolerance and emotional control
- Confidence, adaptability, and resilience
- Leader presence and team trust
- Performance sustainability over time

These are not personality traits. They are trainable skills.

SRI Performance Experts create:

- Dynamic learning experiences in flexible “classroom” environments
- Tailored group and individual instruction for U.S. Army and Dept. of Defense personnel, families, and civilians across 33 installations

The Mind Leads. The Body Follows.
